DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1, 3-6, 8-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Johnson # US 2002/0025221 A1.

Johnson discloses a modular barrier system comprising a plurality of barrier devices (10, 20) each barrier further comprising:

A shell (40) having; top, bottom opposed side and opposed end walls, each wall having an inner surface and jointly defining a hollow, closed interior; and an outer surface.

An interior chamber (42), for receiving at least one filler material such as:

A layer of polyethylene foam (44) substantially, entirely covering said inner surface of each of said walls, such that said foam layer forms a unitary structure within said hollow closed interior, which is bounded by said layer of foam material extending along each of said walls.

A volume of sand, beads, particulates, liquid or foam ballast material.

A coupling device (22) which interconnects individual barrier devices (10, 20).

Although Johnson does not explicitly recite the foam and filler are separate, distinct volumes, one encasing the other, it is inherent that the filler material would have to be provided as a distinct volume, because a mixture of foam and sand, or water would eliminate the foam portion of the polyethylene foam. Wherein said polyethylene foam can have any density within the range of 1-60lbs/ft³.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 2, 7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Johnson # US 2002/0025221 A1 in view of Brubaker # 4,007,917.

Johnson discloses a barrier device having an outer shell (40) a foam core (44) and an additional filler material such as sand. What Johnson does not disclose is whether or not the foam core and filler material are separate volumes.

However, Brubaker teaches an impact energy absorbing foam cushion layer, for use with highway structures, and having a thickness of about 1".

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art, at the time the invention was made to provide the barrier device of Johnson, with a foam cushion layer approximately 1" thick, as taught by Brubaker, in order to provide a desired impact load strength. See Brubaker col. 1, Ins.
